Generation One

1. Donald MacPherson #290881, b. c. 1755 in Kingussie, Inverness, Scotland,¹ occupation Captain, Army in Gaskmore, occupation 1807 4th Royal Veterans Bn., Quebec, occupation 1909 Major, 10th Royal Veterans Battalion, occupation 1812 Lieutenant -Colonel, British Army at Kingston, d. 23/25 February 1829 in Kingston, Frontenac County, Ontario,^{1,2} buried in Cataraqui Cemetery, Kingston, Frontenac County, Ontario.¹ .

1795: OPR Marriage shows he was an Army Captain in Gaskmore, Ann SHAW lived in Dalnavert. But many of the MACPHERSON's in the area were Catholic, and records there are fragmentary.

Possibly an illegitimate son of Ewen MACPHERSON? Ewen MACPHERSON of Cluny, "Cluny MacPherson." 11 FEB 1706 - 30 JAN 1764 was the Laird at Cluny, located in Laggan, Inverness shire. The original Cluny House was burnt in 1764 following the Battle of Culloden, and replaced by the present imposing Cluny Castle, built in 1805, which was the seat of the descendants of Cluny MacPherson until 1943 when the last of the direct line of the family in Scotland had died. The castle was once rented by financier Andrew Carnegie for summer holidays, and Queen Victoria looked into its purchase before determining that the weather was too unpleasant.. and bought Balmoral instead.

Note that Donald MACPHERSON named his own house in Pittsburgh Township, Cluny Cottage, although that is a far less imposing structure!

Laurie C. C. Stanley, "MACPHERSON, DONALD," in Dictionary of Canadian Biography, vol. 6, University of Toronto/Université Laval, 2003–, accessed September 18, 2024, https://www.biographi.ca/en/bio/macpherson_donald_6E.html.

MACPHERSON, DONALD, army officer; b. c. 1755 in Inverness-shire, Scotland; he may have married Elspeth Macpherson, and they had at least one child, Allan, "Laird of Napanee" m. 23 Jan. 1795 Ann Shaw in the parish of Laggan, Inverness-shire, and they had three sons and six daughters; d. 25 Feb. 1829 in Kingston, Upper Canada.

Donald Macpherson's parentage and early life are surrounded by a haze of uncertainty, but the details of his military career are clear enough. In 1775, with the American revolution, Macpherson joined the 71st Foot. After receiving his first commission on 15 Jan. 1777 as a lieutenant with the 4th battalion of the New Jersey Volunteers, Macpherson served with this loyalist corps at Staten Island, N.Y., during 1777 and most of 1778. However, he spent the greater part of the war with the 71st Foot, from August 1778 as an ensign with the 2nd battalion, and then from 19 Oct. 1779 as a lieutenant with the 1st battalion.

After returning to Scotland in 1783, Macpherson refused to lapse into half-pay obscurity. He seldom lost an opportunity to resume his career of soldiering. In 1794 he recruited at "considerable expense" a company for the Loyal Cheshire Regiment and in 1798 he assembled a company of clansmen called the Cluny Volunteers. On 9 July 1803 he received the rank of captain in the 92nd Foot, and on 1 Jan. 1805 that of major in the army. In January 1806 he was transferred to an old soldier battalion, the 9th Royal Veterans.

It was as a major of the 10th Royal Veteran Battalion that Macpherson was introduced to Canada. He arrived in Quebec with his family in 1807, and in 1809 was "honored with the Command" of the post at Kingston. Macpherson's pre-1812 administration at Kingston was uneventful, being characterized largely by a prodigious output of estimates for pointing, whitewashing, and carpentry, designed more to fortify the town against the weather than to repulse an enemy.

At the outbreak of the War of 1812, Macpherson decried the "critical" shortage of small ordnance and the disrepair of the barracks and public buildings at Kingston. The following year a line of fortified blockhouses and pickets changed the town's military face. Their construction was testimony not only to an emergency building program, but also to Macpherson's supervision and resolve to use "every exertion in my power . . . for the defence of this post."

Although it is generally believed that Macpherson spent the War of 1812 as commanding officer at Kingston, documentation proves otherwise. His daughter's recollections of bullets penetrating "the wooden walls of the pretty white cottage that then did duty as the commandant's residence" places Macpherson there during Commodore Isaac Chauncey's abortive attack of November 1812. However, by May 1813 Macpherson had transferred to Quebec, where he assumed command of the 10th. He was promoted lieutenant-colonel on 18 Nov. 1813. Although one of his children referred giddily to life in Quebec as "very gay, balls every other night," Macpherson's duties were seldom glamorous. His was the dull, desk-bound task of commanding a body of aged and infirm soldiers, certifying widows' pensions, recommending officers for promotion, and compiling returns of claims. He remained in Quebec until December 1816 to supervise the final departure of several detachments of his disbanded battalion for Europe.

When Macpherson, now reduced on full pay, returned to Kingston in 1817, he appeared to have all the props and pretensions of a prosperous, well-settled man. The "old Veteran officer," stocky in appearance and ruddy in complexion, had an air of substance about him. The government responded generously to his memorials for land, and he had ample grants situated in Kingston itself and in the townships of Eramosa, Nassagaweya, and Melbourne.

By 1820 Macpherson had retired to a property he nostalgically called Cluny, located in Pittsburgh Township near Kingston. But retirement was not synonymous with retreat. As part of a group of socially prominent Kingstonians, Macpherson lent his arm and pocket-book to a variety of civic and moral causes. He subscribed to the Kingston Compassionate Society (1817) and the Catarauqui Bridge Company (1826), acted as a director of the Kingston Boarding and Day School for Young Ladies (1826-28), and served as a representative for Pittsburgh and Wolfe Island in the agricultural society for the Midland District (1819-20). In 1822 he was ordained one of the founding elders of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Kingston, by the Reverend John Barclay.

Macpherson's devotion to clan and kinship was no less noteworthy. It was to his door and his patronage that his in-laws the MacDonalds came from Glasgow in the summer of 1820. The half-sister relationship between the colonel's wife, Ann Shaw, and Hugh Macdonald's wife, Helen Shaw, drew the families together. Tradition holds that as a schoolboy John A. Macdonald* was a frequent visitor to the Macpherson household, where he sampled his uncle's library and the "slices of pudding" set aside by Macpherson's youngest daughter.

Macpherson's civic activity waned during the last years of his life. As early as 1820, sobered by the "Certainty of Death," he prepared his will, outlining the disposition of his lands, army pension, and "Household furniture Plate Bed and Table Linen." By 1826 the local newspaper was advertising the sale of his "fine farm" Recurring bouts of "Fever and Ague" and rheumatism kept him convalescent. Macpherson died on 25 Feb. 1829, aged 74. "A large concourse of Inhabitants" witnessed his burial with military honours. In their silent prayers they acknowledged the passing of an "Officer and a Gentleman"" who had spent 54 years "in the Service of His King and Country."

The Weekly British Whig, Kingston, Ontario, 14 FEB 1916

"COL. J.P. MACPHERSON

"Died at Ottawa after a Long Illness.

He was Well Known in Military and Government Circles - Mrs. K.N. Fenwick, Kingston, a Daughter.

"Ottawa, Feb. 10 - Lt.-Col. J Pennington Macpherson died yesterday morning at his home, 25 Delaware avenue, after an illness of over two years and a half..

He was the only son of John Alexander Macpherson, an officer in the Canadian Dragoons, who fought in the rebellion of 1837-38, and or Maria Clark, daughter of Capt. Alexander Dalrymple Clark, of "Dalnavert," Kingussie, Scotland, and grandson of Col. Donald MacPherson, 71st Regiment, Imperial Service.

"He entered Queen's University, Kingston, at the age of fifteen and graduated at eighteen with high honors, being first in ancient and modern history and second in both classics and mathematics. He also won the two special prizes offered for the best essay on the Greek dialect and the best translation of Homer. After a few years of successful practice of law in Cobourg and Ottawa, he entered the Civil Service, which he served for many years with honor and distinction.

"Col. Macpherson had always been an enthusiast in military matters and is said to have been the only officer in Canada holding first-class certificates in the three branches - artillery , engineering and infantry. He had a high record as a rifle shot and had twice represented Canada on the Wimbledon team, the last time as second in command. When colonel of the Governor-General's Foot Guards he brought the regiment to a higher state of efficiency than any other corps in Canada. Upon retiring from the command he was honored by being appointed A.D.C. to the Governor-General, Lord Stanley.

"He wrote fluently on military and historical subjects. His book on "Military Law" was for many years used as a text book. In 1891 Col. Macpherson wrote the Life of Sir John A. MacDonald, which biography contains particulars and sketches gained by his intimate friendship with Canada's greatest statesman.

"He is survived by his widow and five daughters, Mrs. K.N. Fenwick, of Kingston; Mrs. J. Venn Henderson and Mrs. Stuart Wotherspoon, of Montreal, and Miss Edith and Miss Jessie Macpherson of Ottawa. Major J.A.C Macpherson and Capt. K.C. both on active service."

The Montreal Star (Montreal, Quebec), 05 JUL 1943

"Miss MacPherson Funeral is Held

""Final tribute was paid at the chapel of G. Armstrong & Co., Park avenue, this afternoon, to Henrietta Macpherson, a well-known resident of Montreal, who died at the Royal Victoria Hospital on Saturday. She resided at 456 Pine avenue west.

"Dr. E Leslie Pidgeon of Erskine and American United Church, conducted the service. Burial will be in Kingston, where Miss Macpherson was born.

"She was descended from a family of United Empire Loyalists (see comment below) and was the daughter of the late A.F. Macpherson, a veteran of the Fenian raids and one of the first officers of the 5th Royal Scots army unit, now the Black Watch. Her great-grandfather, Col. Donald MacPherson, commanded the Kingston barracks during the war of 1812; and another ancestor, Judge Alex Fisher, was one of the first judges of Canada. Miss Macpherson was a member of the Montreal Women's Club and the Themis (sic) Club.

"She is survived by a sister, Miss Annie L. Macpherson, of Montreal; a nephew, Major A.E. Macpherson, overseas, and two nieces"

Editor's (John Brebner) Comment:

By definition, a United Empire Loyalist must have been an American colonist who retained his loyalty to the British Crown during the Revolutionary War of 1776. The MacPherson family failed to meet that criteria, as they lived in Scotland and Lower Canada/Upper Canada at the time of that conflict.

While there were at least four McPherson families in Ontario that did qualify for the UEL designation, this MACPHERSON family was not one of them.

Having said that, she can claim UEL Status through her FISHER family connections, See the FISHER and KIKRPATRICK genealogies also on this site.
